

No Installment this week..

Contributed by Jonathan Haase
Wednesday, 10 April 2002

There will not be an installment of the World War II journal this week in order to take a brief moment to honor the man who wrote it. Charles D. Harper passed away yesterday at the age of 85. Charles was born December 31, 1916. He served in the Army during World War II from March of 1942 through April of 1945, spending most of this time in Europe. You can't sum the life of a man like Charles up into a few brief words, or even paragraphs, so I won't even try.

The WWII journal will return next week.